Why Local Hunters Failed To Kill a Bear-Hoxie-Base Marriage-Alon-zo Warren's Ankle Broken,

Monday evening as Casper Kennicon was coming up South street, his attention was attracted by a large moving object in the fields just above the achoolhouse a moment's steady gaze in the dim light convinced him that it was a bear. "Cap," is brave but he was unarmed and has a wife and two small children, so he wisely decided to forget the honor of capturing the big beast single-handed and gave the alarm. In a short time about a dozen men and boys arived. Someone had a gun, but so soon after the Fourth ammunition was scarce and only one shell could be found. The party proceeded cautiously up Weirs lane, the animal occasionally raising its head and gazing at them. A nearer view showed, not the bear of their imagination, but a big paper balloon which had probably landed there Saturday might and which the high wind of Monday evening moved about in a life like manner. The crowd realized that the joke was on them and enjoyed i hearty laught over their mistake. "Cap" carried home the balloon and the bear still lives.
